CORN CROP TO BE BIG.

Despite Drouth Scott County Will Gather Big Yield.

Joe Wilson, whose home is in the Cape, but who is known as one of Scott county's most progressive farmers, says that the recent rains have insured a bumper corn crop on his farm, which is located near Commerce.

"My early corn will average at least 35 bushels to the acre," said Mr. Wilson yesterday, "and I will gather from 45 to 50 bushels to the acre on my late corn. A neighbor, whose farm adjoins mine, has a field near me of the best corn I have seen this year. The best of it will make eighty bushels to the acre."

"My crop was injured, of course, by the long drouth, but it is by no means a failure. I planted my early corn May 17, or thirteen days after the last rain. My corn had been planted over one hundred days before we got a rain."

"My late corn was planted June 4. It is now in splendid condition, and the yield may exceed my expectations. But in spite of the dry weather, I have already cut my alfalfa three times and will get another crop this season. For the four cuttings it will average five tons to the acre. It is worth $20 a ton, which shows that we farmers are not losing money after all."

"One field of cow peas produced an average of a ton and a half of cow pea hay and from ten to eighteen bushels of peas to the acre. The hay or straw is worth $12 a ton and the peas about $2.50 per bushel."

"Wheat and oats were good everywhere. And taken on the whole, the farmers have done very well, despite the fact that some newspapers have killed all of the crops several times this season."

BRASS THIEVES ARRESTED

Two Men Held in Chaffee Also Have Many Hides.

Fred Carnes and John Hall were arrested on the streets of Chaffee Monday evening at about nine o'clock on suspicion of having stolen some brass from the Frisco railroad company.

When arrested they had in their custody a wagon load of goods alleged to have been stolen, among which were 31 cow hides and about 3600 pounds of brass.

Fisco Special Agent Vinson and Constable J. C. Randolph of Illinois made the arrests.

One of the men who has been in the employ of the Frisco for nearly 18 months as a stationary engineer has been under suspicion for sometime, and a careful watch has been kept on his movements.

When Officer Vinson concluded that the time was ripe to end his investigations, he secured the assistance of the Illinois officer, who joined him in watching the hiding place of some stolen plunder which they believed was soon to be carted away.

Shortly after dark Monday evening, the two suspected men with Ira Holmes, a teamster, drove to the guarded spot and proceeded to load the hidden articles into a wagon. They were permitted to finish their task, and when they drove away they were followed by the officers. Driving to Holter's slaughter house a short distance north of Chaffee, the suspected parties entered the building and secured a number of hides from their place of storage.

From the slaughter house, they drove back to Chaffee where they were surprised and arrested by the officers who had been quietly following them in an automobile.

The brass was identified as Frisco property, and the cow hides were claimed by their owner, Mr. Holters. The teamster was exonerated from any connection with the alleged theft, and Carnes and Hall when arrested, were taken before Judge Estes where they are charged with stealing brass and carrying concealed weapons, and bond fixed at $500 on each charge.

The stolen goods were restored to their owners and the necessary bond were remanded to the county jail in Benton where they will remain until the time of their trial.

MANY FOREIGNERS IN MISSOURI

Natives of Warring Nations Live in Almost Every Town in State.

Jefferson City, Mo., Sept. 1.—With all the powers of Europe involved in a war for supremacy and the smaller nations joining in, one by one, it is interesting for Missourians to know just how many foreign-born of different nationalities are now living in the state.

Information to this effect taken from the "Lure of the Land," a publication just issued by the Bureau of Labor statistics, discloses that the foreign born population of Missouri, at the last federal census, was 228,865 men, women and children, divided, according to countries in which they were born, as follows:
